It was fun to see your idea get the full treatment now, after we talked about it some weeks ago. You give some good background, especially from the literature; your ideas are illustrated thoroughly; and you ground your design decisions well with concepts from the course. Finally, your analysis is sufficiently thoughtful that you also cover possible negatives.

Do remember to stay with the word satisfaction when describing the metric. You slipped into “satisfiability” at one point and of course in computer science satisfiability is a completely different thing :)

Random Notes:

- Use nested { } in your bibliography items to enforce capitalization, like {Soft keyboard {UX} evaluation}.
